THE SPIRIT OF JOHN LENNON

John Lennon was one of the most important musical talents of our time. His influence and impact not only on music but on society is beyond measure, as is the tragedy that took him from us far, far too soon. But an historic event recently took place that will perhaps allow the world to once again be touched by Lennon's genius.

Recently, famed psychics from virtually around the world gathered to reach out to John Lennon and contact him. Their attempts culminated in a spine tingling séance held after they each separately sought out Lennon's spirit in different sites significant to the former Beatle. Outside the Dakota Building in New York, in the shadow of the Capitol Records Building in Los Angeles, and in the town in India where Lennon pursued his spiritual retreat, these renowned psychics used their exceptional talents to for the first time contact John Lennon after his death. And the results were nothing less than astonishing.

In India, a spirit reader who spent time with Lennon on an ashram frantically scribbled musical notes and lyrics he received from the other side. These incredible notations were then flown to Los Angeles, where a composer arranged the notes, added vocals and backgrounds, and produced a hauntingly beautiful song. The song had never been heard before, and yet the style was unmistakable. Could it be a last musical legacy from beyond? There can be no doubt it sounds that way...

In New York, a psychic visits not only the infamous Dakota Building, but the Strawberry Fields memorial in Central Park as well. His efforts produce contact that will send chills down the spine of both fans of John Lennon and any casual observer; it truly must be seen to absorb the impact of what he may have accomplished.

After reviewing the tapes of the psychics, colleagues and confidantes then sat at a séance table for one of the most incredible 30 minutes of psychic contact ever recorded. State of the art infrared cameras were in place for the entire séance, and as the psychics conducted the spirit gathering, the infrared captured a figure, an undeniable presence in the room. This astounding footage may be proof not only of the presence of spirits crossing over to our side, but of John Lennon's powerful desire to once again make himself known. It cannot be missed!
